The satirical magazine referenced witness statements that were judged inadmissible as evidence during the employment tribunal between Sellafield Ltd and HR consultant Alison McDermott.

It was found she had her contract lawfully terminated for what Sellafield claimed was filing an improper report which detailed what she alleges was a culture of bullying and harassment at the nuclear site.

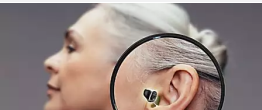

In the witness statements, it was alleged by an employee that Jamie Reed, who was Sellafield Ltd's head of corporate affairs at the time, was abusive and harassed them, using personal emails and phones to discuss sensitive material, and calling people names.
